Case study · Restaurant website redesign

Chef’s Corner

A website that looks as good as the food, for a brother-owned restaurant in Pittston, PA.

Client	Location	Scope	Live site
Restaurant & catering	Pittston, PA, USA	Redesign & rebuild	chefscorneronmain.com

The challenge

Chef’s Corner has served Pittston since 2016, but their old website didn’t reflect the quality of their food. For most customers, the website is the first taste of a restaurant, so it needed to make a strong first impression, especially on a phone.

What I did

- Redesigned the site around the food, with a real dish as the first thing visitors see
- Put Call, Directions and Menu buttons up front, plus a bottom bar on phones
- Turned the menu into a clean digital menu with categories, prices and house favourites
- Added a catering page for office lunches, celebrations and weddings
- Linked online ordering through DoorDash, with hours and directions easy to find

Case study · Website redesign + printed menu

Rollen Forks

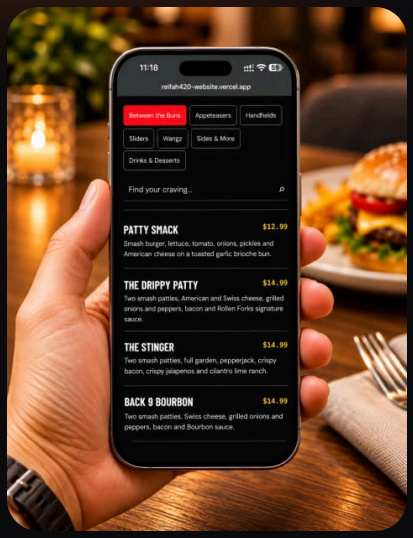

A website and menu as bold as the brand, for a sports bar and grill in Pilot Point, TX.

Client	Location	Scope	Website
Sports bar & grill	Pilot Point, TX, USA	Website + printed menu	reifah420-website.vercel.app

The challenge

Rollen Forks is a sports bar and grill with a big, playful personality: burgers, wings, sports and menu names that make people laugh. Their old website needed a redesign to match that energy, along with a printed menu in the same style.

What I did

- Redesigned the site around the brand's voice: "Eat. Drink. Get Forked!"
- Featured menu items with prices, plus a large food photo gallery
- A weekly specials section: Kids Eat Free Tuesdays, Buns & Brewsday and Friday happy hour
- DoorDash ordering and an inquiry form for birthdays, parties and events
- Designed a printed menu to match the website, so the brand looks the same online and in the restaurant
